

CHAPTER VIII - (CONTINUED.) "It is of no consequence," replied the and on others a suppressed exultformer, turning to the marquis with ation, which suggests to me that Parissome quiet remark concerning the ian doings are not entirely unknown weather.

. The count bustled away from the room. The countess then earnestly innuired concerning all the turbulent to hear, What do you thin, of Vermovements in Paris, and the marquis was much impressed by the good sense and intelligence of her remarks.

"What!" thought he, "is that obtuse Languedoc ignorant of the superiority of the wife he treats so slightingly?"

He might have guessed that this very superiority was cause enough for slight from such a little nature as the count's.

"That is as remarkable as propitious," observed the marquis. "Are you sure this man has means of obser-

"Certainly; a more faithful, trustworthy fellow cannot be found in all

The countess and her daughter exchanged glances. In the face of their knowledge it was certainly painfully ludicrous-this complaisance and selfsufficiency of the count's. The marquis did not lose this little by-play of dumb talk between the ladies.

"We must not be over confident," said he, "there is too much at stake to peril it lightly."

"Oh, no," responded the count, rubbing his hands briskly, and acting like a person just emerging from a nightmare of horror into perfect security. "But we can afford to take Pierre's word, I will give warant of that."

same time beseeching looks at Felicie. The latter spoke at once.

"But, papa, I do not in the least share your confidence. I can tell you something that will shake your faith in that odious M. Pierre."

"Odious M. Pierre! yes, that is it. Your ladyship has used my absence skillfully; you have instilled into the girl your own absurd and shameful antipathy to my favorite agent!" exclaimed the count, turning angrily to his wife.

She bit her lips ere she answered, with the utmost coolness:

"Felicie will assure you her prejudices are her own. But pray let us leave so disagreeable a subject. I think I hear the bell which summons us to the dining-room; I am sure you must be ready for the repast."

The marquis gave her his arm, and Felicie went out with her father. The latter recovered his good humor at the table, and drank to the health of the future Marchioness De Berri. His daughter received it in silence.

"Edward should be here to respond," a week from this will give him the privilege."

The ladies retired early, leaving the gentlemen to their wine.

"Mamma," exclaimed Felicle, "what is to be done? Papa will never credit our story, so obstinately does he pin his faith upon M. Pierre. And if we tell it, he will carry it at once to M. Pierre, and will not that ruin all?"

The countess sighed bitterly. "I cherished the hope that he would at least give me credit for veracity. His mistaken confidence in that villain will greatly embarrass us. It will never ilo to risk the destruction of all by allowing M. Pierre to hear of our discovery. I see only one method."

"I know what that is, mamma. Wait until Emile comes, and ask his advice. I shall look for the flowers every morning and noon. It seems best to me, also."

"You have guessed my decision. And about the marquis and the marriage, Felicie?"

The girl dropped her head against her mother's shoulder.

"I am a coward, mamma, after all my brave talk. I dare not oppose my father's will. Besides, since Emile has seen him and pronounced him worthy, do not feel so desperately miserable." The countess kissed her fondly.

"Dear child, Heaven grant there may be no risk. His father is very prepossessing."

"Yes. I wonder how he came to be so intimate with papa, he is so different."

"Hush, my child, do not forget your filial respect."

Felicie accepted the reproof without comment, but as she contrasted this careful respect of her mother's with the tantalizing behavior of the count, she found it impossible not to reiterate her indignation mentally.

The next day the two gentlemen rode over to Frejus, dressed very plainly, and quite unattended, M. Pierre watched them ride away with malignant glee.

"There go two simpletons on a fool's errand," muttered he. "Do they expect all the people to come forward and inform them of the intended revolt? Much wiser may they be on their return."

CHAPTER IX. hope?"

HE marquis looked grave as he again entered the drawing room, and the countess hastily inquired:

"No ill news, I 'Nothing definite;

der."

but I am painfully anxious for my son's arrival. I don't fully share the count's confidence. There was a dogged, sul- this perversity."

len look on some faces to-day, Some terrible thing has happened in Versailles, for one man muttered, when he thought the count was too far away

The countess sighed, but would not add to his disquietude by the revelations in her power to disclose.

sailles? How many are left of the Guards?' Ah, madam, I fear everything horrible!"

The days wore on into weeks; the weeks became a month. Continual reports of additional horrors arrived, but The count came back in the highest | no sign of the Marquis Edward. In vain, also, Lady Felicie strolled off morning after morning, to the meadow bridge. No longed-for blossoms appeared. If Emile lingered much longer the chilly winter winds would despoil them all. The father was restless and miserable, and dared not return to search for his son. The count, too grew anxious and less confident. It was a terribly trying time for all. The countess wasted away fearfully; the suspense seemed consuming her very life. M. Pierre still remained with them, and outwardly everything proceeded calmly; but what a feverish tide surged and throbbed beneath the assumed mask of indifference on all sides.

The count and his noble guest were pacing the terrace just at twilight one October afternoon, when a ragged figure, in a rough peasant blouse, came slowly up the avenue. The count lifted his arm in a gesture of rebuke for the The countess opened her lips, and presumption, but the forlorn-looking then closed them again, casting at the creature gave no heed, only hurriedly approached nearer. Suddenly the marquis with a sob of relief and astonishment rushed to meet him.

"Edward! Good Heavens! In what a plight!"

"Yes, my father. Thank Heaven, I have reached you at last, but I am nearly dead with exposure and suffering," exclaimed the youth, and as he spoke he tottered and would have fallen but for the father's outstretched arm.

They carried him into the house through the balcony window, to save the prying curiosity of the servants, and so came most abruptly upon the countess and her daughter in the little parlor they had used constantly since the count's return. Lady Felicie's first view of her betrothed husband was certainly not a very flattering one. The pale face, the disordered hair, the rough, should venture." stained clothing might well change poor Edward's appearance. She retreated in dismay, and left them busily restoring animation to the half insensible youth. When at length she summoned said the marquis, gayly, "but I trust into an adjoining chamber. Her mothor came out and flinging her arms around her neck, fairly sobbed.

"What is it, dear mamma?" exclaimed Felicie. "Oh, my child, what horrible times has narrowly escaped with his life. He has been in prison all of this time; he escaped the day after a fearful massacre. The palace was sacked, the Guards cut down; more than twenty thousand and the royal family are close prisoners. La Fayette, himself, is denounced, and has fled to Germany. The whole land will be steeped in blood." "But now the Marquis Edward has come, we shall all escape," said Felicie, soothingly, alarmed at the fixed look of anguish on her mother's face.

"Heaven grant it, my child; for you, at least, may there be safety, but a wild foreboding has seized me; I cannot shake it off."

"Hush, hush, my precious mamma, my blessed one, you are nervous and excited. Perhaps, Emile has come, likewise. Oh, do not give way, you who are all my support and strength." The noble mother clasped her daughter closely in her arms, closed her eyes, and Felicie saw her lips moving in fervent prayer. After that she smiled calmly.

"It is indeed wrong in me to frighten you, my Felicie; the weakness is over. Whatever it may be, I accept my fate humbly, as the portion dealt out to me by Heaven."

How often afterward did these thrilling words return to the tender daughter! How much comfort and grace did they pour into her bleeding, mournful heart! "Some one aided him. It was strange name-the Gray Falcon, I think he called it."

"It was not Emile, then. Somehow I fancled it might be this which detained him so long."

At this moment the count came into the apartment; he was fairly trembling with terror.

"Make ready for instant departure, Violante," said he; "the moment Edward is able to be moved, the marriage must take place, and an hour afterward must see us on the road to St. Joseph, where a fishing vessel lies waiting for us. The marquis and myself have converted everything possible into and is paid a pension for support, and diamonds, and we shall not need to burden ourselves with anything bulky. We might take the plate, if it can be packed without discovery by the servants. No one but M. Pierre will know of our movements, till too late to hin-

"M. Pierre!" exclaimed both mother and daughter, in horror.

"The old story!" ejaculated the count, angrily; "one would think at this awful time you might put aside

"Count Languedoc, if you confide in that man, you are ruined; the horrors which come, whatever they may be, will lie upon your own conscience. Believe me, I beseech you, for this once in your life. M. Pierre is the leader of the band who wait but the signal for murdering us all," cried the countess, sternly.

"Apretty, ccusation to bring forward against a faithful fellow I have known and trusted for years; he is as anxious and alarmed as any one of us."

"He is an artful knave, indeed, if he has won your confidence so thoroughly that you will accept his word in contradiction to your wife and child," retorted the countess, bitterly.

"Oh, papa, papa, believe us," cried Felicie, "we have proof of his treachery, we heard with our own ears, w€ saw with our own eyes-"

"Tell me precisely what you accuse him of, what is your proof?" "I will gladly do it, if you will assure me that you will not carry the story to him.' "Ah," sneered the count, "you will not allow him the opportunity to clear himself. I shall give you no such assurance, for I should certainly allow him to vindicate his honesty."

The countess wrung her hands. "Perverse to the last! Immovable as rock! What can we do?" "Obey my instructions, get ready your clothing, and have a bridal dress for Felicie. It shall not be said a Languedoc was without fitting wedding garments, even in such a time as this."

The countess and her daughter went silently away. What could be done to convince him of the folly and wickedness of his conduct?

Edward was feverish and too ill to rise the next morning. Much as this delay distressed them, there seemed no other alternative than to be patient. But they were careworn, anxious faces which gathered around the breakfast table. Immediately after the meal, however, Lady Felicie came flying to her mother's side with sparkling eyes. In her hand she held a small nosegay of wild flowers.

"Oh, mamma, I seem to have found strength and safety. Emile is certainly at hand."

The countess' face brightened likewise. "You found them on the bridge?"

"Yes, yes. What if we go to meet him there at the tree? You know since my father's return, the ghosts have forsaken the woods. He may give us valuable information."

"I will think about it. It will be difficult to elude your father's observation, and he would peremptorily forbid our leaving the house. Yet it is worth the trial."

"You do not look equal to it, ma chere mere. How wan your face has grown! I almost think I have courage to go alone, rather than that you

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

The Ancient Laws of Ireland. The ancient laws of Ireland, compiled about the time of the conversion of the courage to return, he had been moved island by St. Patrick, and known in their completed form as Cain Patraic, fter the missionary, were curious in many ways. There is no trace of Roman law about this old Brehon code, which, modified by St. Patrick, lasted as the law of the Irish quite down to have we fallen upon! That poor youth | Queen Elizabeth's time. It is like the old German codes in that it makes everything a matter of fine. When a judge on circuit, after the English fashion, is to be appointed by one of Henry VIII's viceroys to a new dissouls sent into eternity. The poor king trict, the chiefs beg to know what is his eric, in order that they may pay for him, in case their people "put him out of the way" And so it was in the fifth century. St. Patrick found a law of compensation existing, and he did not succeed in altering it. He attempted to do so, for he got sentence of death passed on the man who soon after his landing threw a lance and slew his charioteer. "The man was put to death for his crime; but Patrick obtained heaven for him." "Therefore," quaintly adds the old commentator, "as no one now has the power of bestowing heaven, as Patrick had that day, no one is put to death nowadays but has to pay his eric." The basis, then, of Irish law was compensation. If any wrong is done, and not atoned for, the sufferer, or his tribe, has a "right of distress" against the criminal or his tribe. The seizure, whatever it was, was lodged in the public pound; and both parties went off to the brehon (judge) to get the case settled by him. The judge heard the witnesses and gave judgment, which was usually religiously respected. A commoner had to give a chieftain notice by fasting before his door for a given time, after which a seizure could be made. Undutiful children were forbidden to inherit property; for leaving a mad woman at large there was a fine of ten cows, and for idiots not dangerous of five cows; a kinsman's crime could be visited on his father's, mother's or foster father's tribes. There was a certain exemption from seizure. No man could be deprived of his harp, his chess board, his raiment, his wife's lap dogs or his children's playthings.

No Orphan Asylum in Australia. Australia has no orphan asylums,

Every child who is not supported by parents becomes a ward of the state, placed in a private family, where board and clothes are provided until the fourteenth birthday. After that he may be able to go to work, in which case the pension is placed to his credit until the age of eighteen, when he becomes a citizen, with a balance due to him from the state to begin life with. This inculcates a humane, charitable and responsible spirit in all residents, decreases the chances of pauperism, and places every young man on a fair and square footing with the world.

Peaceful Slumber Unknown.

DREADFUL DREAMS DRIVE SLEEP AWAY.

For Eight Years a Lady of Emporia. Kansas, Suffers Unspeakable Agony-She Relates Her Experience.

From the Republican, Emporia, Kan. Mrs. Jennie Carlow resides at 713 Merchant Street, Emporia, Kansas, and is the wife of W. R. Carlow, proprietor of the Carlow Wagon and Blacksmith Works, who is so well known as the "Past Grand" and as one of the most active members in Lodge 15, I. O. O. F., of Emporia.

The distress of a condition of chronic sleeplessness is so terrible. Mrs. Carlow's sufferings from it so well known, our readers we feel sure, will welcome the good news that she is now well, and will be glad to know how the cure was accomplished.

Mrs. Carlow's statement is hereto append ed in narrative form:

"For many years I was a confirmed invalid, suffering constant pains through my breast and back, of the most excruciating type, rendering me absolutely helpless. I was unable to rise up or lie down without assistance, and was subject on the least ex-assistance, and was subject on the least extion to flutterings of the heart and such shortness of breath, or dyspnæa, that I often thought I was dying.

"Peaceful slumber was unknown to me. I would fall into a doze only to be awakened by the most horrible dreams, of too frightful a character to describe, and in the morning instead of being refreshed and rested, I would be utterly exhausted.

"I w. sattended at various times by every physician in the city, but none of them could physician in the city, but none of them could do me any good, though I spent hundreds of dollars in my quest of health. About three months ago. Mrs. Elizabeth Drake, whom you perhaps know, spoke to my hus band advising a trial of Dr. Williams' Pinl Pills for Pale People, stating that they had permanently cured her after years of suffering from milk leg, and he at once procured a supply for me.

"By the time I had taken two boxes according to directions, for the first time in two years, I was able to enjoy peaceful and restful sleep, and as I continued to take them my health improved, so that now while using the fifth box, I feel quite recovered and my health is entirely restored. I still take two pills every night just before retiring, and wake up every morning perfectly happy.

"I advise every one whom I hear complaining to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, for although I recognize the fact that medicine that will cure one, will not another, still as most diseases are due to a bad condition of the blood, Pink Pills in such cases will prove a certain cure. It is but natural that I should have the most unbounded faith in them. I am only too glad to bear testimony through your paper as to what they have

The above is an exact report of Mrs. Carlow's statement. Charles Harris, (Signed) Reporter, Emporia, Kan.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are now given to the public as an unfailing blood builder and nerve restorer, curing all forms of weakness arising from a watery condition of the blood or shattered nerves. The pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price, 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50 (they are never sold in bulk or by the 100), by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schnectady,

The venerable fig was one of the earliest fruits to be cultivated, and its praises are sung in poetry, history and romance, while the Bible frequently alludes to it. It was a principal food of the Greeks, and is now cultivated in all the countries around the Mediterranean, though our supply comes from Asia Minor, southern France and Spain.

Doubles the Pleasure of a Drive. A fine carriage doubles the pleasure of drivcan save dollars by sending for the large, free catalogue of the Elkhart Carriage and Harness Mfg. Co., Elkhart, Ind.

A novel safety lamp now used in German mines can be lighted without being opened. It is not closed in any special way, like other lamps, but its wick is provided with a cap that is forced down by a spring-instantly extinguishing the light-if the lamp is

Hegeman's Camphor Ico with Glycerine. The original and only genuine. Cures Chapped Ha and Face, Cold Sores, &c. C. G. Chark Co., N. Haven,

"Fire ornament" as a term of abuse has proved deadly to a 16 year-old girl at Hackney, who drowned herself in the River Lea, because the boys hooted at her, applying that description to

Lawrence Barrett's widow lives in

" Down Brakes, and Reverse!"

whistles "Down brakes!" and reverses his lever. Brakes alone are not enough; the whole proer of the engine must be reversed and made to work in the oppo site direc tion. That is how it is sometimes with disease. There are the system is flying along the track of disease at such a frightful pace that no ordinary methods will prevent disaster. There are plenty of medicines which act merely as brakes to "slow up" the disease and put off disaster for a little while; but that isn't enough. What is needed is a medicine that will instantly reverse the entire wasting, will instantly reverse the entire wasting, degenerating process.

When people are losing flesh and strength and vitality, with the life oozing out of them day after day, they need Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which acts directly upon the vital forces, completely transforms the entire nutritive organism and totally reverses the wasting, debilitating process which is at the root of all diseases.

It enables the digestive and blood-making organs to supply the circufation with an abundance of pure, healthy, red blood. It stops the wasting of tissue, builds up solid muscular flesh and healthy nerve-force.

muscular flesh and healthy nerve-force.

muscular flesh and healthy nerve-force.

Miss Mary Whitman, of East Dickinson, Franklin Co., N. Y., writes: "For nearly ten months I have had a bad cough, and instead of getting better, it grew worse, until I was advised by a friend to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I hesitated at first, for it seemed to me nothing would give relief only death. My parents were auxious about me, and I was said to have consumption. I tried your medicines, and before I had taken many doses there was a great change. When the second hottle was emply had no cough and was a great deal stronger."

Hindoostan had a monopoly on oranges till the fruit spread to the other parts of the world. The crusaders brought back oranges, but the ancients around the Mediterranean were so unhappy as to die without tasting this delicious fruit. We are all eating the descendants of one tree if what the Portugese claim is true. They declare the progenitor of all American and European oranges was a single oriental tree transplanted to Libson and still living in the last generation. Vibrating in Tuneful Accord, Like the strings of a musical instrument, the nervous system in health harmonizes pleasantly four sections, fed by two sections. with the other parts of the system. But weaken ed or overwrought, it langles most inharmoniou Quiet and invigorate it with the great tran quilizer and tonic, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters which promotes digestion, billous secretion and a regular action of the bowels, and prevents malar ial, rheumatic and kidney complaints.

Herrmann, the recently deceased magician, earned $600,000 in 12 years, spent it all and more and died almost penniless. He lost a great deal of money in disastrous theatrical schemes and in stock speculation.

disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address, Chinese laundrymen command higher prices than laundresses of other na alities. A Chinaman earns ordinarily from $3 to $15 z week and his board and lodging.

Sharks grow a new row of teeth for every year of their age until they reach maturity. The jaws of a full grown specimen can be extended about for Sardanapalus in the new ballot 18 inches.

NO-TO-BAC FOR FIFTY CENTS. Over 404,000 cured. Why not let No-To-Bac regulate or remove your desire for tobacco. on record. aves money, makes health and manhood Cure guaranteed, 50c and $1.00, all druggists.

FITS stopped free and permanently cured. No fits after first day a use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Hestorer. Free St rish bottle and treatise. Send to Ds. Klins, 231 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa. The Kiel canal is lighted over its 62 miles by electricity, and is the longest distance in the world lighted continu- ities that 620,600 tons of water tumble ously in that way. There are 5000 over Niagara every minute, night and poles.

Persia and Anatolia provided the original quinces, the Greeks took to their culture, and they may be seen on the walls of Pompeii.

American ice cream is advertised in the City of Mexico at "only one dollar for an American quart.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup

For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflam ation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25 cents a bottle Gage county, Nebraska, claims a woman who can husk 75 bushels of

The Vermont Legislature passed a bill prohibiting Sunday excursion trains We will forfeit $1,000 if any of our published testimonials are proven to be not genuine. The Piso Co., Warren, Pa. Theater parties of women without escorts are common in New York. Modjeska has 600 bee hives on her California ranch.

WHEN billious or costive, eat a Cascaret. candy cathartic, cure guaranteed, 10c, 25c

England has American railway or

Michigan has a state mining school.

**************** W. N. U.-WICHITA.-NO. 7.-1897. When answering advertisements

please mention this paper.

264 BUS. CORN PER ACRE.

can make money at 10 cents a bushel when you get 264 bushels corn, 230 bushels cats, 173 bushels barley, 1,600 bushels potatoes per acre! Salzer's

$10.00 WORTH FOR 10 CENTS!

to the John A. Salzer Seed Co., La

Crosse, Wis., and get 12 farm seed samples, worth $10, to get a start. w.n.

The Baltic Canal, 87 miles long, has been successfully lighted by electric are lamps. The line is divided into

Each section supplies 250 lamps of 25 candle power, taking 25 volts at the terminals of each lamp, or a total pressure of 7500 volts for the whole circuit.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure timonials. Address, F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

Queen Victoria has been substituted that Sir Arthur Sullivan is composing for the London Albama. The ballot will be descriptive of the longest reign

It is estimated by competent author-

CASCARETS stimulate liver, kidneys and bowels. Never sicken, weaken or gripe, 10c.

Naked Pills

are fit only, for naked savages. Clothes are the marks of civilization—in pills as well as people. A good coat does not make a good pill, any more than good clothes make a good man. But as sure as you'd look on a clothesless man as a mad one, you may look on a coatless pill as a bad one.

After fifty years of test no

AYER'S

Cathartic Pills

SUGAR COATED.

pills stand higher than

Denmark has women sailors.

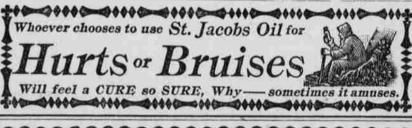

day.

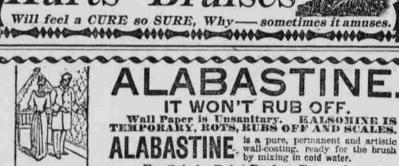

Sold by druggists, 75c. Hall's Family Pills are the best,

Just Send This Notice and 10 Cent creations in farm seeds produce,

It's marvelous how we progress! You

His Turn

Willie (crying)-For goodness sake, papa, don't go in the house. Mamma's just thrashed me, and you'll be next!

For Sale by Paint Dealers Everywhere.

Miss Helen-Are those cowlets, Har ry? Harry-I don't know whether they are cowlets or bullets.-Up to Date.

